“Doing Multi-Sited Ethnography: An Ethnographer’s Journey Through the City”

Terry Williams, Ph.D. is a social scientist and researcher specializing in teenage life and culture, drug abuse, crews and gangs, violence and urban social policy. He has lectured in the United States and abroad on the impact of drug misuse among teenagers and adults, graffiti writers, public housing issues, race relations, homelessness, and center city life.

Professor Williams is the author of Teenage Suicide Notes, (in press 2011), The Uptown Kids: Hope and Struggle in the Projects (1994), Crack house (1992), The Cocaine Kids (1989), and Growing Up Poor (1985).

He has been a consultant to private and public organizations on a range of issues, from developing training modules for drug abuse practitioners to devising conceptual guidelines for park planning and restoration. He has appeared as an expert witness on cases involving: capital murder, racketeering, drug dealing gangs and decoding street language obtained by wiretapping.
